

The teacher as a facilitator in learning

The role of teacher is changing in smart and active learning methodologies. Now teacher is a facilitator in learning. Teaching and learning are being modified due to innovations in education. In the new learning environment, it is important to understand the difference between 'teaching' and 'facilitating in learning' because both the words are correlated with each other. A teacher must be innovative, active and interesting in her subject so that he/she makes learning fun. A teacher must change his/her attitude while acting as a facilitator in the teaching process.

I will suggest active learning methodologies in an institution as it provides very smart teaching learning opportunities to teachers as well as students. If a teacher creates an active learning environment in his classes, he has to help students in learning in various ways. Teachers may use collaborative learning and try to do an exciting experiment in the class. In modern learning environment, 'learning' is a more popular word than 'teaching'. Teachers have to understand the modern trends in teaching-learning process so as to make learning more interesting and interactive.

SONU SAHNI, Supervisory Head, Arvind
Gupta DAV Centenary Public School,
Model Town